PARIS POST, THE FRENCHMAN'S WINDOW ON THE WORLD—A surprisingly large turnover has forced the scheduling of a second section of the popular Grand Tour of England. Even now, eager French tourists crowd the streets of London. Meanwhile, it's reported that the City of Liverpool is eagerly awaiting their arrival and is preparing a 21 gun salute.

PARIS POST, THE FRENCHMAN'S WINDOW ON THE WORLD—The Mayor of Liverpool is reportedly distraught over his inability to offer the arriving French tourists the promised 21 gun salute. It seems that the Royal Navy has been unable to find enough ships for 21 guns. Perhaps they will succeed in time to welcome the Germans to Edinburgh?

TURKISH TIMES—An extra warm welcome to the new Kaiser Ron, replacing Kaiser Ken, who replaced Kaiser Jack. This seems like a lot of diplomatic talent to command Army Albania—but not for long.

TURKISH TIMES--The Good-Sport-of-the-Year award for 1901 has been won by Germany. Following a highly creative opening, the German Chancellor refused to build any more military units, saying "Give peace a chance." Reportedly, his neighbors all want a chance to get a piece of Germany, but his example inspires the world.

MOVING DAZE: Joe & Kathy and Sara Joan Antosiak are nestling into their new apartment in Skokie, and yes, Virginia, of course it's near railroad tracks just as have been all of Uncle Joe's homes. This one is one building and a street removed from the Northwestern railroad, and come fall, when the trees in Crown shed their leaves, the Antosiaks will have a full view of the skyline on the track and football field just across Midford St. Also in the move are the Voigts now that the former owners of their new Hinsdale abode have been seen moving out. This latter information was gleaned as a result of one of Tiger Wiley-Benes' recent visits to the Hinsdale Animal Hospital, which is located just up the ~~XXXXXX~~ Voigts' Vine street address. Tiger will apparently undergo surgery within the next few weeks to correct a thyroid condition that has led to an extreme lackadaisical condition and loss of appetite. Right now she's on baby food...

Jiri and Dana Klisak write from Prague that they'll try to get tickets to a performance at the National Theatre for the Wiley-Benes visit. The restoration work on that 19th century building is just about finished.

The World's Degradest Newspaper... QUOTABLE: Former Marquette basketball coach Al McGuire, asked during his coaching days, what it was like after his team had lost three straight games: "It was sort of a combination of Dunkirk, MacBeth and Johnny Carson taking a vacation." KALDENAR: August 5th is Alan Peters natal day... KVIZ: Answer to last week's question: d) My former teacher, who was an expert in CIRCUMLOCUTION, could take a paragraph just to say, "Hello." Question #19: STAUNCH a) strong, firm, resolute; b) having a strong odor; c) pertaining to a tree; d) in chemistry, a term ~~xxx~~ for noxious vapors; e) improper, not moral, or ethical FIVE YEARS AGO IN THE STAR:

—For the second time in the summer of 1979, Springfield mailman George Hines was shomper on by one of the canine members of the capital city's population. The incident occurred as Hines was bending down to pet a nice little dog that had come to greet him. Suddenly, he was blind-sided by a golden retriever who put its teeth into ~~XXXXX~~ Georgos face, narrowly missing a nerve. The incident left a small scar on the right jaw bone that Hines has been passing off as a wound suffered in a fencing duel...

—Rich Mylak continued his expose of life on jury duty, describing the boredom of small talk and lunch break, during which he visited the cafeteria at 26th and California, where they served "high priced leftovers from County Jail..."

—In the TBA several club owners were ripping Whitehorse's Kelly Doggerell for trading its second round draft pick to Roswell for journeyman center Noah Zark. Alan Peters was saying it looked as though the Coyotes had acquired another farm club, and Naperville mentor Hobart Felhark blasted it as the giveaway of the season since Doggerell had just rejected a 1.3 million dollar offer of five players to the Coyotes. The deal was announced last week.

SAN FRANCISCO IS AGAIN COMPLETE

by Tom Eng

The city that knows how has done it again! San Francisco has brought back the Cable Cars, on time and a couple million dollars under reconstruction budget. During the 20 month absence, San Francisco was just not itself. Today, June 21st, the little cars that climb halfway to the stars can now take their place alongside the other tourist attractions within San Francisco's borders. Fishermans ~~WHARF~~ Wharf, Golden Gate Bridge, Palace of Fine Arts, Coit Tower etc. Although most tourists think of the cable cars as a toy, many city residents use the system as a functional means of transportation. As for history:

Back in 1870 a wire rope salesman named Andrew Hallidie was walking up one of San Francisco's steep hills. As he labored up the incline, he noticed the poor horse team that tried to pull one of the large street cars up the same hill. With the conductor whipping the horses time and time again, the street car would only make it a quarter of the way before the horses would slip back exhausted. The struggle was so bad that one of the horses broke a leg and had to be shot. Hallidie thought about this and came up with the idea of using wire rope. See "SAN FRAN" page 1 to pull the street car up those steep hills. After much work along with some saved and borrowed money, a track was constructed on a steep incline on Clay St. By August 1873 the system was already ~~going~~ to go at 3 AM on the morning of the 1st. A few souls gathered to watch history in the making. It was said that the first person dubbed as the gripman got on the cable car, took one look at the steep hill he was supposed to maneuver down, protested he had a wife and kids to consider, and promptly jumped off. So Hallidie himself took the controls. He turned the wheel to engage the cable and the car moved forward and down the hill into the fog. After a few minutes, a cheer went up from the few assembled. Hallidie had made it safely to the ~~top~~ bottom of Clay St and guided the little car back to the top.

Ever since then the ~~XXXX~~ Cable Car has been an integral part of San Francisco. Herb Caen has said that if the Cable Cars ever left, San Francisco would only be LA with lumps. Even though I don't agree with Herb Caen completely I can understand what that means. Cable cars make this city unique. It is not THE attraction but one of many. It is just one part of what makes San Francisco so enjoyable. As a native I'm going to make sure that the Cable Cars will be around another 110 years.

SPEAKING OF HISTORY, DEPT: SEEK LINK BETWEEN GILLESPIE AND 80 YEAR OLD MURDER CASE?

by Desmond Tutu, STAR History Ed
As is his wont, Jim Benes has been looking through the back issues of old Chicago newspapers again, savoring the microfilm for tidbits to put into another series of Christmas radio features.

And there it was, in the pages of the CHICAGO INTER-OCEAN from December, 1904. The story was date-lined Rising Sun, Indiana. It was about the murder trial of James Gillespie. Since the current day UBA Commissioner is of the same name, and since some of his forebears hail from Indiana, one must wonder if a gloomy portion of his family history may herewith have been uncovered. The 1904 James Gillespie was charged with blowing away his twin sister Margaret with a 16-gauge shotgun because he allegedly was unhappy that the twins' mother had willed two pieces of property Margaret, and cut James out of her will. The two places in question were valued at about $3400, and Benes' research hasn't yet uncovered the result of the trial. Stay tuned...

SPROTZ GOLF

Rich King came from behind, picking up seven strokes on the last five holes of play recently to edge Jim Benes by two strokes in a round at the Timber Trails Golf Club. The two had played even through the first nine holes, and Benes had taken a five stroke lead with three, well, better holes to begin the back nine. But as one of the intrepid linksters noted: "I'd say we're about 30 strokes worse than bad."

Vice Presidential hopeful Geraldine Ferraro isn't too happy about Walter Mondale's campaign button slogan "Fritz 'n Tits," but, they both think they'll do better with "Wally and the Beaver!"

DEJA VU AS KENNEDY MISSES BRIDGE!!!

The STAR has learned exclusively that the Democratic "Good Driver of the Decade" and all-around political assassin's target Edward "Ted" Kennedy has done it again!

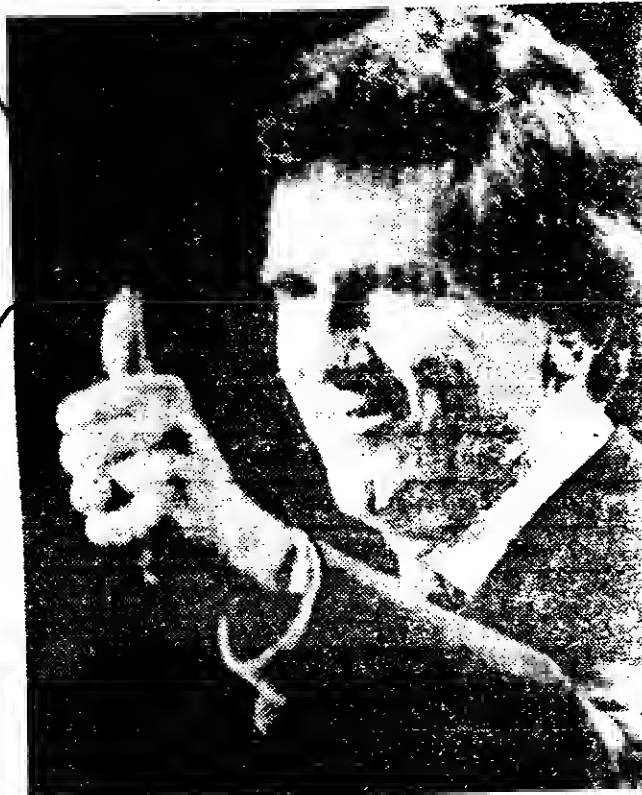

The Senator was driving to the National Convention when, oops, over the edge he goes, right into the drink!

The good news is, "Crash" didn't have any passengers this time!

GARY HART, MASTER OF LINGO, BOWLS 'EM OVER IN SPEECH!

"I drive a hart bargain, and I'll be back in 4 years.
I've hartly begun to fight. Take hart.
This is one hart that won't be left in San Francisco, harty, hart, hart."

CHICAGO EMBARRASSED AGAIN!

Everybody looked bad when CBS Snooze correspondent Ed Bradley ambushed Harold "I'll be mayor for 20 years" Washington with alderpest "Fast Eddie" Vrdolyak on national TV. Bradley denies it was an ambush. But what reporter ever admitted one?

It wasn't all that bad though, since convention coverage got only 20 to 30 percent of potential TV viewers, proving once again that the public isn't as stupid as it's made out to be.

DID JESSE FOOL US AGAIN

NBC'S Tom Brokaw reports that after his Tuesday night address, Jesse Jackson turned from the lectern and asked supporters, "Did the Jewish thing go over?"

TRUE STUFF:

MIAMI--Gadget genius Sammy Popeil is dead. He's the guy who invented the all-purpose gift, the Pocket Fisherman, and the exciting Veg-O-Matic. Sammy's wife was convicted of trying to kill him, and they were divorced. But always the soft touch, Sam remarried her.

ALBUQUERQUE--Would-be burglar Bob Gabaldon was trying to break into a drugstore, when he got his pinky ring-finger caught in the air conditioning vent in the ceiling. He was trying to sneak in that way. In any event, he slipped and fell from the ceiling, hanging there by his finger for ten minutes, before it ripped from his hand.

KARALA, INDIA--They've cancelled school here because of falling coconuts. It's true. So many nuts falling from the trees, they could hurt the kids.

CHICAGO--U. of Chicago scientists are working on a nasal spray to control precocious puberty. So parents, take heart. Help is on the way!
